We created two class-level diagrams to keep it more organized the only difference is that one is for canceling an order, and the other is for asking for a refund. They both follow an identical process but operate separately so we thought it was best to separate these diagrams.